Thoughts from the Preacher

"No One"

No one has to miss heaven.

No one has to be

Eternally separated from God.

Only the hardhearted,
rebellious and proud make such a choice.

"TWO ROADS"

From "The Gospel Gleaner"

The last three lines of the Robert Frost poem, "The Road Not Taken" are: "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I – I took the one less traveled by – And that has made all the difference."

Just as the great poet remembers the time when he came to a point where the two roads diverged in a wood, each of us comes to those points in our life where we look, and the paths open in two directions. We must choose. Which shall we take? It is not a new dilemma. Eve faced it (and took the wrong path) in Genesis 3:1-6. Joshua faced it. He told the people, "Choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve," Joshua 24:15. Esther faced it. She said, "If I perish, I perish" (Esther 4:16b). Daniel faced it. "Three times a day he got down on his knees and prayed, giving thanks to God, just as he had done before" (even though it had been decreed that anyone doing so would be put to death [Daniel 6:10b]). The Apostles faced it. Jesus said, "Come," and they followed Him.

As God's people, it is so wonderful to look at that time when we made a choice to follow the path less traveled. We were, at one time, faced with the roads that led in two directions. Isn't it a tremendous feeling to know we have chosen the right way? We should rejoice every day that God showed us the way ... that He guided us by the Holy Word in the direction we should go, that He lifted our burdens to walk with Him.

We, as Christians, should be the happiest of people because, as the poem says, "And that has made all the difference." How has it made a difference? Matthew 7:13-14, "Enter by the narrow gate; for the gate is wide, and the way is broad that leads to destruction, and many are those who enter by it. For the gate is small, and the way is narrow that leads to life, and few are those who find it."

The difference in the roads is destruction or life. It is a wonderful feeling to know you have chosen life, isn't it? Oh ...

you have taken the right road, haven't you — the one less traveled by, the one that leads to life?
